Introducing myself, I am Arshita Satsangee, a first year student pursuing my Major studies in Psychology and English from Dayalbagh Educational Institute, Agra, India.

Being a national Table Tennis player and having an avid interest in various fields like adventure sports and travelling, my areas of interest also revolve around History , be it visiting historical monuments, reading historical books or watching Historical stage shows.

For the next few years from now , I have kept my options open considering getting into the field of Law or pursuing a Master's in psychology. The skill sets which I would like to acquire apart from excelling in academics are pottery-making and learning about the cultural diversities and cuisines.

I am a backpacker and a gypsy soul looking to explore different landscapes. I live by the saying 'Carpe Diem'-Seize the Day (making the most of the day and most of life).

The 3 precepts I live by are –

- Adhyayn ( ongoing learning and education).
- Seva ( inculcating the spirit of selfless service and contributing to the community at large).
- Vyayam ( a sound mind in a healthy body because only when we remain fit , we can serve others).
